“ The first time I crossed paths with Annie was over the phone in 1989 she was at the ferry and I was in payroll - I telephoned and I heard a high Minnie Pearl- like voice say "personnel" - and that was it for me; I was sold hook, line, and sinker; I'd met Annie.

When you meet Annie you gotta just adore her - she was a rare kind of human the epitome of sweetness and genuineness.

A little gem.

And , as a civil servant - smart and quick and just overall bright; she could do timekeeping and assignments with the best of em, assign ferry staff on the boats and get them paid too, and she could perform the full complement of administrative tasks with great facility , intelligence, and consummate skill.

No one gave Annie her titles/ jobs - she did it the real way, the right way , the old fashioned way- she took her tests and passed her tests , got on a list and was appointed Civil Servant.

That was Annie , the real deal - and much more.

When I worked at the Ferry both our birthdays were in the beginning of August and we would always grab a special birthday Leo's lunch - with a personality like that, Annie could only be a true Leo.

Well - I'll think of Annie - my little birthday pal - the beginning of each August and remember all the laughs and fun - last time was 2016 with Sue Martin , very special - and I'll say a prayer for them both.

Rest in peace Annie - it's too bad you were the only Annmarie Brown that Rosie made - right now this world needs about a billion Annie Browns to make a heaven on earth.

Rest well , no more pain , just peace.
