“ Miss and love you pop. I know you'll always be looking down on me. I will forever cherish all the memories we had together

“ Pop,

I cannot believe I will no longer see your vibrant face as I walk through the door, when I come to visit. Your eyes would light up and the smile draped across your face was genuine. You were always so happy to see me.

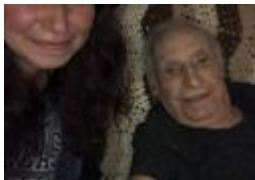

You were one of my #1 fans when it came to my articles in the Staten Island Advance. There were so many times I'd come over and you would say to me, "I read your article." And there it would be — cut out and in your hand. You were proud to see my name in the paper and all that I accomplished. You kept all of the clippings in the hassock, and always talked about it.

I am grateful I had the opportunity to interview and ask you about your youth, time in the Marines, and adulthood. I remember you asked me why I was asking all these questions, and whether it was for a book. I responded by telling you "maybe". That's when you turned and looked at me with a shocked expression on your face. "But I don't have a story to tell," you said. "Of course, you do," I replied. You looked at me, shrugged your shoulders, and said, "You're the writer, so I guess I do."

Your story may not be on bookshelves for the whole world to read, but it will forever be in my heart.

Love always,

Kayla
