“ Jared was truly an amazing soul. He was a great father, friend and all around person. Jared loved his little boys more than anything in the world and you can see they felt the same about their dad. He was passionate abt the things he loved and being a chef was one of his biggest accolades. One of my funniest memories of Jared was when he bought my daughter a hover board and I said we have to hide it from my dad because hell flip abt our genius hover board lesson idea. As Jared turns around from the register he bumps faces with a man he has yet to meet. That man coincidentally was my dad . I was behind him with my hand over my mouth trying not to laugh at how his first encounter w my dad was with hover board in hand for his grand daughter. But as you all know Jared somehow he got out of that situation leaving my dad with a smile on his face. Only Jared could have pulled that off. God rest both of their souls. 2 good men God know has.
