Her green thumb was renowned, as she was an avid gardener. Addie found solace in her garden, nurturing beautiful flowers and tending to her cherished tomato plants. The outdoors brought her peace and tranquility.

Knitting was one of Addie's favorite pastimes. She spent countless hours creating hats, headbands, and ponchos for her great-granddaughter, Val. Her creativity and talent shone through in every stitch, leaving behind cherished heirlooms filled with love.

Addie had a deep affection for animals, particularly cats. For over twenty years, she had a faithful companion named Daisy, who brought her comfort and companionship.

She also embarked on numerous cruises and enjoyed the beauty of Woodloch, PA, alongside her sister, Rochel.
