“ Life is difficult. We spend years interacting with people we love and taking all of those interactions for granted. We know the inevitable course of events but when we finally face those events we are still taken by surprise. The void leaves us breathless. We fill that void with memories we have stored away - memories that fill us with warmth and laughter. Our loved ones aren't gone. They live within all of us who share an experience, a moment, a laugh, a tear. They never die. They just change. They move along the continuum and they wait for us to join them. Wait for us Sonny. We will all be together again some day.

“ Our families were always together, I have so many memories of my uncle, he was one of the most mild mannered people i ever met. I don't think i ever heard him raise his voice, but it could be he was drowned out by everyone else. One of my memories is on the 4th of July, which happened to be his birthday, they would wait till it got dark and set off fireworks in my backyard. And I can see him and my father running with the hose to put out the fire they started in the back of the garage, every year! I will miss him greatly, my heart is broken, but I have great memories. Love you all
