“ — You Don't Just Lose Someone Once —

*You lose them over and over,
sometimes many times a day.
When the loss, momentarily forgotten,
creeps up,
and attacks you from behind.
Fresh waves of grief as the realisation hits home,
they are gone.
Again.*

*You don't just lose someone once,
you lose them every time you open your eyes to a new dawn,
and as you awaken,
so does your memory,
so does the jolting bolt of lightning that rips into your heart,
they are gone.
Again.*

*Losing someone is a journey,
not a one-off.
There is no end to the loss,
there is only a learned skill on how to stay afloat,
when it washes over.*

*Be kind to those who are sailing this stormy sea,
they have a journey ahead of them,
and a daily shock to the system each time they realise,
they are gone,
Again.*

*You don't just lose someone once,
you lose them every day,
for a lifetime.*

“ Tony was my Godfather at Confirmation. As the elder statesman among our extended family of cousins, he was a role model. A serious student, he was the first to carve out a professional career as an engineer. But he always shared a lighter side. Through him I discovered Johnny Carson; and Tony's fascination with magic tricks entertained me immensely. In the late 1960s, when Tony was starting out in his field, I had a part time job as a switchboard operator, and each week I'd make long distance calls to him in Florida, and patch him through to his family in New York. Great family man, then--and always. I offer my condolences to his family. Tony will be missed but leaves behind a magnificent legacy through his children and grandchildren.

“ Tony is my “Big Brother”.

Not sure if everyone knows how lucky it is to have a Big Brother.

I do.

We were 7 yrs different in age, but he never let me down.

Going to sleep having a Big Brother like Tony was knowing I had someone to turn to no matter what.

Going to sleep will never be same.

Our Mom and Dad have him again.

One day we will all be together again.

I will never forget my “Big Brother”.
