“ I've known Tony since the Command days (probably 1987?) Whether I was crying about a boyfriend or terrified when I got my colon cancer diagnosis, he was always so kind and supportive. I will forever be grateful for his friendship. If I am feeling such a painful loss, I can only imagine how his beloved family is feeling. So I send you all strength and courage to get through this devastating time. Fly high with the angels, my dear friend, and then settle in your place next to God. I'm sure he'll be honored to have you serve by his side.....

“ Tony had it all. Humor, depth, sincerity, honesty, integrity and authenticity. He was a special person beyond measure. Even during his own illness, he was concerned enough to take the time to give me all sorts of advice on how my husband should proceed with trying to fix his own health issues. Selfless is what Tony was. Many years ago he would give me advice that came right from his heart. In more recent years he would share his feelings and opinions about life and I felt so lucky that he considered me a "forever friend" as he called me. I will remember Tony with heart felt love and a smile and I know that God will get a real kick out of him because he was that special and unique. Rest in peace my sweet friend. You will never, ever be forgotten.
