“ Anthony (always knew him as Tony) was a most faithful friend, constantly putting himself out for others. Tony never backed away from the responsibilities of his long, proud career with Sanitation as well as his trove of volunteer positions through the years. In addition to his unblemished work record, Tony loved the companionship of friends and made his various "posses" happier just by his presence and his caring nature, Tony loved his family - his daughter Kim & son Sal (and their families. For lack of another word, he adored his wife Joanne, implicitly trusting her judgment and devotion. This relationship lasted well over fifty years, til his passing.

Tony, unconsciously, taught so many to be better people. He lives on in our hearts and minds and love for him; he has touched us all.

“ Tony was a special friend, a man with a good heart and lots of drive. He came to this Country from Palermo, sicily, when he was about 12 years old. He had to learn how to speak English, a very difficult task. I met Tony in 1972 when he came to work in Brooklyn North Borough Office of the NYC Department of Sanitation.

We became good friends from the start. You can see that he had a lot of pride, having been a Sergeant in the United States Army special Forces, a uniformed member of the NYC Department of Sanitation, and most of all, having a wonderful family.

Over the years of working together, helping to fight some major snow storms and being able to keep our sanity, we continued to be good friends. I even asked Tony to be our Best Man when Mary and I were getting married, and he accepted. Many of us in Brooklyn North Borough, around this time, started to get promoted to Supervisor and we were sent to other locations to work. We continued to stay close on and off the job, attending Department dinner dances and family functions.

We went on a few trips together but the trip to Italy in 2001 was extra special in that we just retired. Tony & Joanne, Mary & me, and Marie & Rob (Joanne's cousins) made this 16 day trip together. We visited many places in Italy and even got to Palermo, Sicily where Tony was born. About 26 of Tony's relatives met us in Palermo as our bus pulled in. They treated us royally. We got to visit the church where Tony (Anthony) was christened in the town of Spira Cavallo. We saw the house where Tony was born. It meant so much to him as it did for us to be there with him.

Tony retired in 2001 as Deputy Director, Bureau of Waste Disposal, NYC Dep't of Sanitation. He handed over his presidency of the Columbia Association, but he continued to be very active with the Community Mayors' Association, and he also took on the secretary job with the NYC Sanitation Retirees. He did so much and will surely be missed.

“ Growing up being friends with Sal his father was always laughing and a fun person to be around. A role model for many of us with his hard work and love for his wife and kids, he will be missed.
