“ Christina was a wonderful person who made my life better every time I was with her. With her wonderful smile and contagious laugh, it was impossible to not be in a good mood around her! I knew Christina from our time together at Hobart and William Smith and during 2004 we spent a semester together in LA studying off campus. Over those few months we became good friends and shared many adventures on the west coast. Christina was a beautiful person and I will miss her dearly.

“ For days I have been thinking of what to write, but there are no words, she was an amazing personality. Someone put that Bookfairs will never be the same without her, and it is true. She is going to be greatly missed! All of my memories of her make me smile, like the five minutes between busy meetings, where we quickly had time to discuss her latest bag, shoes purchases, and what one of us was wearing. When we had a bit longer, the more serious and deeper things would be covered, but her cheeky sense of humor and smile was never far away. My deepest sympathies to all of her family.

Christina was a very special person, smart, fun, perceptive and hard working and wonderful. I worked with her (and in fact would not have had Focal press foreign translations of my books in French and Hungarian if not for her hard work in making that happen). But beyond that, in the process of working together, we became friends. We celebrated each book with champagne. We had long talks about loss and love. (We'd both lost our dads) I cannot imagine this pain and loss, but please know Deborah, you and your husband raised a wonderful person. I will miss her.

I am so sorry.

Sincerely,

“ Christina truly had a gift and such charisma for always lighting up a room with her charming good nature. We shared lots laughs and great tales about our Italian heritage at the book fairs together. I shall always remember those moments very fondly. Christina will be very truly missed. I was honoured to have met lovely Christina. May she rest in peace.

My deepest sympathies go out to Christina's family and friends.

“ After ten years of working Bookfairs with Christina, I know a Bookfair will never be the same again. Christina had a passion for her Rights work and brought a huge splash of colour and glamour to the stand. We shared many a giggle and story and as a result of her big heart and humour, Christina made many friends worldwide through her role as Rights Manager. She will be greatly missed by us all and always remembered. With my very best wishes to Christina's family and friends at this sad time.

“ Christina was very passionate about publishing and books and many of the clients she met through her work would also consider themselves to be her friends, of whom I know she made many from all around the world.

She always found the time to read a chapter or two of the latest novel in between meetings at the book fairs we attended and enjoyed socialising with her colleagues.

Her presence and lively sense of humour will be greatly missed by her friends and colleagues here at Taylor & Francis.

My deepest condolences to her family.
