“ Grandma in a nutshell.

Grandma: can I order ya something, want cake, cookies, pie, cold cuts, a sandwich....

Me: No, I just ate thank you.

Grandma: 5 minutes later. Come on let me order ya something you and dre do you don't have to cook dinner.

Me: no, grandma were good don't worry.

Grandma: wanna make me a sandwich. Make yourself one too.

Me: yes, I will. No, I don't want one.

Grandma: De Anna! Let me order ya something.

Me: if I eat a cookie will you shut up about food

Grandma: okay

Me: stuffing a cookie in my face that I don't need to eat

Grandma: how was it?

Me: good

Grandma: wanna take them home. Want another one

Me: oh my god!!!

Grandma: don't bring God in this.

Me: I'm over it. Grandma I gotta go

Grandma: but you just got here

Me: no, I've been here over an hour

Grandma: but we didn't talk

Me: you asked me about food the whole darn time!

Grandma: okay let me order ya something. Or get my purse I'll give you money for dinner! Go out get something on the way home.

Me: Kiss and run out the door! I love youuu

If it wasn't about food, it was stories upon stories, it was talking about recipes, remembering grandpa and mommy, it was catching up when i wasn't around for a bit due to school and work, then just work, learning 500, it was calling her in the middle of the night because my friends and i forgot how to play 500 and she'd walk us through it again even if it was 3am, it was playing hours of war, goldfish, it was playing scrabble, watching old westerns, listening to her talk politics I didn't even know was going on. It was getting SCAM calls saying I did something and they needed money over the phone immediately and her never second guessing giving the money but knew I wouldn't be involved in these things, then having my uncle call to make sure I wasn't really in trouble. Thank God she never fell for their scam. She was about loving hard and sometimes a little too hard it came out different. But it was grandma and we loved her none the less. Now, that the shock and denial finally wore off it hurts more and more but I know you're in a better place and you have grandpa's arms around you and you're giving mommy the biggest hug. Watch over us and always make sure we're fed. Make sure you give grandpa and mommy a big kiss and hug from me as I miss them so very much. Your memories will live on.

“ We had many ups and downs grandma bit I do love you and am sad you have left this world. However, every time I make Christmas cookies or bake, I'll remember you especially the times we made pistachio cake every Easter. And I know grandpa will be so happy to see you again. He has waited so long for his wife to come home. So when you walk through the Pearly Gates and into his arms know that we all miss you. Enjoy heaven and all its gift. Enjoy being with your daughter again and enjoy being with Grandpa. They have waited long enough.

“ The many ups and downs that was Aunt Flo, but how I loved her through them all. There have been happy times, angry times, sad times and many many in between. One was never quite sure what you were about to receive.

The many homes I've visited them in, all memories of better days. From the Island to upstate and back. Always a good meal, lots of talking and laughing. Desert oh, don't forget those sweets!!

I was planning to come and see you but you went and skipped out lady.

Crazy as you could be we were blessed to have you. Wouldn't of traded you for the world. Hug Mom, Uncle Jack and even Nanny especially Pop Pop aka uncle Jack 2. Forever in my heart.

“ About two years ago, november of 2017, I got to meet Aunt Flo for the first time, and it was awesome. The thing that stuck out the most was the fact that she would always ask if we wanted "Cold cuts" at like, 11pm, and I always loved that. I didn't know her long, but I could tell she was an angel on earth.
