“ Frank “Fred”, Fruity Pebbles” Frumentti came into my life 46 years ago when I became friends with Susan. No matter what I called him he answered to everything! Regardless of how I tormented him, he never seemed to get angry, or if he did, he never showed me. We had so many conversations and laughs around the kitchen table, and I was always up for him to push me by my ankles to the bottom of the pool so I could patch a leak.

About a month ago, I went to visit him in the hospital, and despite not wanting to leave this earth yet, he readied himself for that day. He asked Jesus to forgive his sins and to enter his heart, because on the appointed day he wanted to be with his beloved Joanne. I know he’s standing beside her now, free of pain. I look forward to seeing them again but until that day it is a comfort to know he has unending love and joy in the arms of Jesus.
