“ There are no words to describe this loss. Losing a sibling is perhaps the hardest thing to suffer in life as so many of us know. Although I did not know him, I feel a loss as if it was my own as I read my last name and I see the face of my cousin, Johnny, in the face of his son, Joseph.

I can only say, may the good Lord be with you all in this time of your trouble. May your heartache ease as time goes by knowing that Joseph will be tranquil and untroubled with those who are no longer with us, awaiting his presence, eager to comfort and support him in peace with our creator.
