“ Mar- You told me that you wanted me to write something, I asked you what to write? and your reply was " I don't know, you write, You know everything" So I am writing what I know for you.

- You were one of the strongest people I know
- You did everything in your power to take care of your children
- You were independent and didn't and didn't expect or need help form anyone
- You loved your grandchildren, and they were what kept you fighting
- You were strong, a fighter, and caring. You didn't know the word "quit"
- You didn't give up, you just wanted to rest

I know you were a woman with strength, that amazed everyone, and carried a heavy burden. You smiled when you felt like screaming, you were happy and laughed to hide your pain and suffering from us. There was only one thing wrong with you, you never expected praise, for your strength, personality and strength for the mother, grandmother, sister, daughter mother in law and friend that you were. So, you are right," I do know everything"

Love,
Your Growing Son in Law, Joseph

“ *Mommy- You were the strongest person I know. We all love you with all of our hearts. If I can be half the person you are, I will be happy. I am happy that you are not suffering anymore, but I do not know how I will continue with you. A wise person once told me, our moms teach us everything, but how to live without them. Boy is that true. :(My heart is forever broken. I love you always and forever
xoxo
Love,
Ilene*
