“ I can remember vividly from my late teens into my early twenties how Ann's and John's home on Avenue P was a welcoming place, doors always open and friends always welcome to come in, sit at the big kitchen table, and eat delicious Italian food till your heart's content. Ann was always smiling and enjoying us all eating her food, laughing at our shenanigans around the table, and just enjoying simple times. I enjoyed making her laugh, which was easy. She was a happy person. I will never forget those days and they bring back warm and cherished memories for me with my best friend Ralph. God bless her and keep her and may she rest in peace, reunited with God and her beloved husband John, her brothers and sister and the rest of her family.
