“ When I was a young teen, my Aunt Muriel, Uncle Danny and their family gave me a job counting papers for the Daily News, and later, gave me a bed to sleep in so that I could work and put myself through college. She was always open, and giving and far funnier than she was ever given credit for being. 'Sharp' is the word that comes to mind. I hope she finds Uncle Danny and Bojangles and has a nice glass of wine and a cigarette as she storms the Pearly Gates and tells Saint Peter how it's done.
