“ When we lose a younger relative (son, sibling cousin) there's a sense of void and guilt because of their early departure. However, we often forget the legacy they left us behind and we should be proud to have had them among us for the time they were working on their mission on this earth. Paul was a great and probably an old soul whose time came short but touch so many during his lifetime. I will always remember my cousin as a congenial human; something many could benefit in practicing it. I won't say goodbye Paul, just simply see you later for I know we'll meet again.
