“ Over the years I have many fond memories of Robert from my childhood all the way to just the last few years. He had a heart of gold as long to those that showed him respect and love, since I always did, I cannot say that he didn't for others because I never saw him angry.

I remember him carrying railroad ties by himself as if they were nothing as my father, uncle, us kids and him rebuilt a ditch and retaining walls after a hard winter thaw washed out so much, even nearly expossing my uncle's septic tank.

He was there to lend help and support for family as he helped build my the vacation house of my aunt and uncle where his niece lives now. When my snowmobile went through the ice, he as well as my brother, cousin and friends helped pull it out even though there was danger that it could have broken more. Once it was out, he was then telling everyone that we needed to move towards safety instead of hanging out happy that we got it out that evening.

He was someone that I will always remeber as being family as well as a friend! Rest in Peace my friend!
