“ When Grandpa passed, it seemed like such a sunny day. People continued their way all the same. I wanted to scream and rave at each one of them that someone was missing. That the world shouldn't continue to turn. It kept on turning and again I feel the same as I did back then. How can the world turn without you? How is it that I'll never hear your voice as you laugh, love or scold me? How will I never feel your warm and soft hugs? How will I never breath in your scent that always felt like home? Somehow, I realize that the world will never stop turning for one person, but you meant the world to me because you never stopped caring or believing in me and without you, my world stopped turning, because you cared so much about me and my feelings. I never felt afraid to tell you anything. Maybe it's not the fact you were not able to stop the world, but that you could mean so much to me and others that you could stop our worlds. I will always remember the good times we had and how safe I felt with you. You were and always will be my world mommy. I just wanted you to know you were my world. I love you.

“ Mom you taught me everything. When I didn't know what to do you did. You raised us all to be tough cookies just like you. There isn't a second of the day that goes by that I don't think of you. I miss you more then anyone will ever know. I know this isn't really for me to be posting but I feel like it's my line to talk to you. Love you forever.

“ I'm very sorry for the loss of Sue. She was a great caretaker of my dog Trinity. I'm sure Trinity was there welcoming her on the other side. My thoughts and prayers are with you through this difficult time.

Susan, I remember back in the day when you lived here in Florida and you stayed with my dad (your uncle Donald), and you didn't take no crap from him, and the love he had for you sticking up for yourself with him. We had awesome cook-outs out there. You were always great to be around. You are now with your uncles, and still take no crap from my dad. We here love you, and you are missed. RIP cuz!
